

Joe Monroe practices dermatology in private practice in the Tulsa area. His career in dermatology began in 1985 after graduation from the University of Oklahoma Physician Associate program. He obtained a Master's degree in Physician Assistant Studies (with a concentration in dermatology) from the College of Medicine, University of Nebraska in 1997. He also writes and lectures on skin disease and related topics. He is the founder and former president of the Society of Dermatology Physician Assistants.